A SONG—FOR AUGUST.

Where o'er the waſte, bleak tempeſts howl;
Where Winter reigns with mad control,
And earth with ſnows infolded is,
Let ſhiv'ring Rhymers ſing "my ſoul!
"How cold it is!"

Far diff'rent ſcenes await us here;
Where "dog-ſtars rage," and where the year
Scorching, remains long what it is:
Then mine the taſk to cry, "oh! dear!
"How hot it is!"

Now are the doors wide open flung;
The veſt on nail is ſlightly hung,
Or chair, no matter what it is;
Quick from the neck the pudding's ſlung,
So hot it is.

In zenith beams the burning ſun;
The lolling herd to covert run:
All tho't, but ſhelter, blotted is:
The dwarfiſh atom ſags a ton;
So hot it is!

Ah! pity now the Falſtaff race,
Perſpiring!—Now the cooleſt place
In piazza, while ſought it is,
They cry, and wipe the humid face,
"How hot it is!"

Chaſte Delia now her fears diſpel,
And to th' enamor'd viſion ſwells
Gratis,—we dare n't ſay what it is;
Yet, while it kills, it ſweetly tells
How hot it is.

Sol ſinks behind the weſtern ſkies:
Too warm to ſleep, the wight he cries,
Somnus! ah! heedleſs ſot it is!"
Anon, we hear his murm'ring ſighs,
"How hot it is!"

DAMON.

Mr. Thomas Weſt Peyton,

SIR,

IN your letter of the 30th of July, addreſſed to Mr. Richard Richardſon, you attempt, a ſecond time, to ſlander my reputation. I thought, Sir, ere this time, you were perfectly acquainted with the old adage, that "a burnt child dreads the fire;" or have you forgot, that you or Col. Frank will have to pay me, ere long, near ſix hundred dollars damages, being the amount allowed me, by a reſpectable and well informed jury for that infamous libel you fixed at my door; but, fiend like, you wiſh to level the reputation of all men with your own.

If, Sir, you had ſtudied the works of a celebrated author, with as much preciſion as you appear (from your nefarious libel againſt me) to have ſtudied the Newgate Callendar, you certainly would not have forgotten the following appropriate lines: "He that ſteals my purſe, ſteals traſh, 'tis ſomething, nothing, 'twas mine, 'tis his, and has been ſlave to thouſands; but he that filches from me my good name robs me of that which not enriches him, & makes me poor indeed." Now, Sir, if you cannot find out who it is that has robbed you of ſo ineſtimable a jewel, I will tell you how to find him—go to the records of Alexandria Court, there you will ſee Brooke againſt T. W. Peyton; alſo, have reference to your oath before the inqueſt who ſat on the body of Thos. Dillon, and your oath a few months afterwards before the grand jury; alſo your oath before A. Faw, eſquire, and Phineas Jenney's affirmation on the ſame ſubject, before the ſame magiſtrate—beſides innumerable other traits in your conduct, to particularize which would exceed the bounds of a letter. After your examination of the above references, I preſume you will not be puzzled to find that it is yourſelf that has cummitted the robbery.

I conclude, Sir, in the language of Iago—"Not poppy nor mandragora, nor all the drouſy ſirups of the world, will ever medicine thee to that ſweet ſleep which thou ow'dſt in thy juvenile days"—unleſs converſion takes place, which may God, of his infinite mercy, grant for the ſake of ſociety.

MANAGEMENT OF THE SINKING FUND.

No. VI.

(CONCLUDED.)

With reſpect to the conſtruction given to the law by the gentleman who moved the reſolution for inquiring into the management of the ſinking fund, be it remembered, ſecretary Gallatin has adventured to ſay, "If it was adopted it muſt follow, that there did not exiſt any authority whatever in the commiſſioners of the ſinking fund to provide in time for the payment of the Dutch debt. For this (meaning the clauſe in the third ſection of the act) is the only clauſe which authoriſes the commiſſioners to make any payment other than for the payment of intereſt and principal falling due that year." And he afterwards adds. "It is hardly neceſſary to dwell any longer on the manifold abſurdities which muſt flow from this aſſumed conſtruction." Such is the ſtyle of triumph in which he has choſen to ſpeak. It is a ſtyle which ill becomes Albert Gallatin in comparing himſelf with the mover of the reſolution. It is a ſtyle which ill becomes an executive officer, who adventures to aſſert what is in direct contradiction to his own official report.

If there be any validity in the arguments, which he has hazarded about "providing in time for the payment of the Dutch debt," it muſt be founded on the opinion that the annual eppropriation for one year could not be legally anticipated by advancing a part in a preceeding year. But is ſuch an opinion admiſſible? When the law has charged certain inſtalments of foreign debt on the annual fund for a particular year, could it be intended that the ſtipulated ſum ſhould not be ſeaſonably remitted? Or could it be intended to prohibit ſuch advances on account of the annual fund, as might be requiſite for effecting the remittances in proper time? Did ſecretary Gallatin never hear of a neceſſary implication, when the main purpoſe of a law is explicitly aſcertained? In relation to this topic, however, there are other conſiderations which deſerve particular attention. Secretary Gallatin, let it be repeated, has confidently advanced the doctrine, that the clauſe which he has recited from the third ſection of the act, is the only part of the law which veſts "any authority whatever in the commiſſioners of the ſinking fund to provide in time for the payment of the Dutch debt." On the 3d of March, 1803, he had forgotten the letter which he addreſſed to the chairman of the committee of ways and means on the 31ſt of March, 1802? He then appeared to know that the law had gone ſo far in empowering the commiſſioners to make ſeaſonable proviſion for any ſtipulated payments as to give an authority for "borrowing any ſums requiſite for the payment of any inſtalments, or parts of the public debt, which may become due."

So far is this authority from being taken away or diminiſhed, by the act of the 29th of April, 1802, that it is explicitly recognized by a proviſo in the 4th ſection. Nor is this all. The act contains various proviſions which have reference to the Dutch debt in particular. It gives authority "for purchaſing bills of exchange or any other kind of remittances, for the purpoſe of diſcharging the intereſt and principal of ſaid debt." Has ſecretary Gallatin remembered to forget the 5th ſection of the act? Or did he ſuppoſe, that his explanatory letter would deſtroy all recollection of the ſtatements contained in his official report relative to the ſinking fund? Examine that report! You will there find, that in 1802, more than ſeven hundred thouſand dollars of the annual fund for 1803, were anticipated. The ſum was advanced from the treaſury, in addition to the whole ſum of 7,300,000 dollars appropriated for the year 1802. This advance was not made under any clauſe in the third ſection of the act. Was it then wholly unauthorized by law? Or is ſecretary Gallatin's explanatory letter at war with his official report? In either alternative he is condemned by himſelf. If you cannot yet believe that the firſt officer of the treaſury of the United States would be guilty of ſuch a palpable inconſiſtency, open the laſt report of the commiſſioners of the ſinking fund! On the 6th page you will find that Secretary Gallatin has rendered a ſtatement in these terms.

"From the proceeds of goods, wares and merchandize imported, and on tonnage, advanced by the treaſury, in order to enable the commiſſioners in Holland to make the payments in time, conformably to the 5th ſection of the "act making proviſion for the whole of the public debt," and being in part and on account of the annual appropriation of 7,300,000 dols. for the year 1803, 785,152 28"

This eſtabliſhes the point beyond controverſy, that with the oſtenſible deſign to provide in time for the payment of the Dutch debt, Secretary Gallatin did cauſe to be advanted, from the treaſury of the United States, the ſum of 785,152 28 cents, during the year 1802, on account of the annuel fund of 7,300,000 dollars appropriated for the year 1803; and that this advance was made under the fifth ſection of the act about the whole of the public debt," and not under any clauſe in the third ſection. What name would be due to ſuch contradictions, if proved upon any perſon who had not been pardoned for inſurrection in the time of Preſident Waſhington? It has long ſince been obſerved,

To ſay, and ſtraight unſay——
Argus no Lsader——

If it was juſtifiable, under the fifth ſection of the act, to advance 785,152 dollars during 1802, on account of the appropriation for the year 1803, a greater ſum, if requiſite, might have advanced under the ſame authority. Of conſequence, the whole ſum of 7,300,000 dollars, appropriated for the year 1802, was applicable to the principal and intereſt of the public debt within that year. How much of the ſum has been ſo applied? From his own laſt words, let the managing ſecretary be judged! in this explanatory letter, he ſtates the amount of principle and intereſt paid during the year 1802, at no more than 7,840,569 dollars and 60 cents, including the whole paymant to the bank. Deduct 1.237,600 dollars for the proceeds of the bank ſhares, which formed no part of the annual ſinking fund! and the balance is 6, 552,969 dollars and 60 cents. So much has been applied, as required by law, out of the ſum of 7,300,000 dols. appropriated for the year 1802 The deficiency in round numbers, is 747,000 dols.

NEW-YORK, Auguſt 22.

A letter is ſaid to be received in town from our miniſter at Paris, which mentions, that in the ceſſion of Louiſiana Weſt Florida is included.

Capt. Nicholls, from Cape Francois, informs that on the 28th July, off that port, in ſight of a great number of ſpectators on ſhore, an Engliſh frigate of 20 guns attacked a French 74, and a running fight continued for ſome time, when a 44 came up, poured a broadſide into the 74, and ſhe immediately ſtruck. Another 74 and a frigate were in company, but they crowded all ſail and made off, the Britiſh purſuing them.

"Cape Nichola Mole is nearly evacuated. The women and children have arrived here. The garriſon having received a freſh ſupply of proviſions, will be able to hold out for ſome time; though they are daily attacked by the Brigands, who are commanded by Clerveaux in perſon."

In the ſhip Experiment, Geary, arrived here on Saturday from Turks Iſland, came part of the crew of the brig Thomas Pinckney, wrecked on a reef between the Weſt and Grand Caicos on her paſſage from this port to Hiſpaniola. The captain, ſupercargo, crew, and the principal part of her cargo were preſerved. The latter was ſaved on ſalvage by ſome wreckers, and carried to Turks Iſlaud.

PHILADELPHIA, Auguſt 22d.

From England.

The Atlantic, Captain Chew, from Liverpool, arrived at New York on Saturday laſt. By her we have received the following notices of foreign events. The lateſt letters by her, which we have ſeen, are to the 8th July. They contain nothing in addition to the following:

Flour was quoted at 32s.

Liverpool July 5.

"We annexed hand you an extract from a London paper, the authenticity of which may be relied on:—

"The foreign miniſters in London, were on Tueſday informed by Lord Hawkeſbury, that in conſequence of the French having ſeized upon the Elbe, and blocked up the navigation of that river to Britiſh veſſels; the Elbe would be immediately blockaded by Britiſh ſhips of war, and that no ſhips of any nation would be allowed to paſs, while the French were permitted to interrupt the navigation. A notice to this effect was poſted at Lloyd's Coffee houſe by a gentleman who received the intelligence; but government has yet made no communication to the merchants and underwriters on the ſubject. The fact is however indiſputable, and there is but one unanimous ſentiment reſpecting it. The public and even the merchants, who may in ſome degree ſuffer, highly approve this meaſure, as one of rigour, juſtice and neceſſity, calculated to intimidate the enemy, and ſtimulate perfidious or puſillanimous neutrals to a maintenance of their rights and independence. The only regret expreſſed is that the Weſer is not blocked up as well as the Elbe. The French ſhould be made to feel that if they prevent communication from the water, we can prevent communication from the land; that we muſt always be a party to a blockade as well as themſelves; and that if they think to divert the commerce of the continent out of Britiſh hands into others they will be miſtaken while Britain has the power of denying to others what ſhe is not allowed to enjoy. There is we believe, another reaſon for blocking up the Elbe, ſtill more important than commercial conſiderations. It is ſaid the French are preparing on that river an expedition againſt Scotland; that general Mortier, commanding the right wing of the army of England, is to embark with ten or fifteen thouſand troops on the Elbe, and to ſail for Scotland, which place the French ſuppoſe he will reach without moleſtation. A report of this kind certainly has been ſent ſeveral members of Parliament, who hold commiſſions, down to Scotland. It is probable the French will attempt invaſion from ſome point little expected, and no place is more favorable than the Elbe, as they can march any body of troops thither without ſuſpicion, and there are canal communications from North Holland which may afford great facilities.

"The blockade of the Elbe will fall heavily on Hamburgh and Denmark; but the latter can open other ſources of trade, and has, in fact, opened them. It muſt alſo preſs hard upon Pruſſia, eſpecially ſhould the Weſer be cloſed, as we hope it will. This meaſure may perhaps embroil us with the northern powers—but that is their fault; they have permitted, or encouraged France to purſue a courſe ſo hoſtile and dangerous to this country, that the preſent meaſure becomes indiſpenſible, and it will teach them what they have to expect, ſhould they permit the French to ſeize upon the navigation of the ſecond. The north of Europe will ſoon repent that ever they allowed the French to come into their neighborhood.

"We were in hopes, as the French troops did not enter the territories of Hamburgh, (although from the command the poſſeſſion of Hanover gave them of the Elbe, it might prove deſtructive to the trade in Britiſh bottoms) that it would have been continued to Neutrals, without any interruption; but the preſent meaſure of our government will for ſome time prevent any communication.

"The government of France, unable to cope with Great Brtain on the ſea, ſeems determined to wage war againſt our commerce: they may cauſe a temporary ſtagnation to the continental trade, but it muſt eventually find a channel.

"The effect of the ſtep of government relative to the Elbe on the northern powers is doubtful.

"Spain ſtill remains at peace, but the continuance is very uncertain. We ſhould ſuppoſe the poſſeſſion of Portugal by French troops, as a circumſtance likely to attend the rupture with Spain.

"An immediate invaſion ſeems expected. There is but one opinion as to the event, and the failure of ſuch an attempt will in all probability be deſtructive to the preſent government of France. They will have numerous diſadvantages to ſurmount; and they will have to encounter a nation perfectly united, and unanimous in their averſion to the ambitious principles of France. "The present is a most awful period, and we do not doubt that in the U. States you will look with considerable anxiety to the event of the contest.

"We inclose you a price current, but in the present state of affairs, we apprehend that no opinion can be given, in which confidence may be placed.

"Cotton, Sugar, Coffee, Cocoa, Tobacco, Dye Woods, and all the articles connected with the export trade and manufactories, must remain perfectly unsaleable, till some secure channel can be found to introduce our produce and manufactures into the Continent.

"Flour is 32s. a 33s. and dull. The prospects of harvest are very favorable, and the importations, of late, from America, have been considerable.

"The stocks of Quercitron Bark are larger than some years consumption will take off, and we strongly advise no shipments being made.

"Timber is likely to remain steady.

"We particularly recommend you not to enter into any speculations. The changes may be so rapid as to render the success of the best formed very uncertain. When any opportunity offers, you may depend upon our writing.

"Though from the long continuance of negociations, an opportunity was given of securing considerable property on the Continent, there is yet some outstanding; and in the manufacturing towns several severe failures have taken place; others are expected, and confidence appears nearly altogether destroyed.

"The effect has not yet reached this place, and our merchants are perfectly firm, and never known in better circumstances; but the want of sale for produce must put them to serious inconvenience in the end.

"The new and consolidated duty acts are not yet put in force. We hear of no alterations in the articles stated to you; but as soon as we can obtain particulars which can be depended on, they shall be transmitted to you.

"The act allowing the free importation of flour, &c. expired the 30th June; it is not expected to be renewed, and will be subject to the import duties. We defer advising them till we see the new acts.—The delay however cannot be material, as there is at present no prospect of advantage from a shipment.

"The new duty is expected to morrow. The duty on flour under the old act, is 1s. per cwt. and 20 per cent. thereon."

Captain Brown, of the schr. Farmer's Delight, arrived at the Lazaretto, informs, that the day before he sailed, the mail arrived from Barbadoes, brought an account that the French fleet from St. Domingo, with Gen. Rochambeau on board, were taken. Martinique and Guadaloupe were said to be blockaded. The English made an attack on the former, but were repulsed.

Alexandria Advertiser.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 25.

The democratic prints fill their filthy columns with abuse, in a pretty regular rotine, on all the great and good men, unprostituted to the party, who contributed to our independence.

Those who went, hand in hand, with Washington, in that glorious struggle, are denounced with jacobinic fury, and such as supported his presidential chair are treated like foes to their country.

Among men of the last description we find General Hamilton, whose honors they endeavor to pluck from him, and whose merit they endeavor to depreciate, by every scurrilous epithet. In doing these things, they calumniate the memory of our beloved Washington; for to attack those who supported his measures, is the most dastardly method of condemning him.

After a moment's reflection on the recent abuse of these publications—from the Aurora to the humble Bee—mark, citizens of all descriptions, the words of Washington, when speaking of Hamilton, and then judge for yourselves.

Extract of a letter from General Washington to President Adams, dated Mount Vernon, September 25, 1798.

"It is an invidious task, at all times, to draw comparisons, and I shall avoid it as much as possible: but I have no hesitation in declaring that, if the public is to be deprived of the service of Col. Hamilton, in the military line, the post he was destined to fill will not be easily supplied; and that this is the sentiment of the public. I think I can venture to pronounce. Although Col. Hamilton has never acted in the character of a general officer, yet his opportunities, as the principal and most confidential Aid of the Commander in Chief, afforded him the means of viewing every thing on a larger scale than those who had only divisions and brigades to attend to: who knew nothing of the correspondencies of the Commander in chief, or of the various orders to, or transactions with, the general Staff of the army.

"These advantages, and his having served with usefulness in the Old Congress, in the General convention, and having filled one of the most important departments of government, with acknowledged abilities and integrity, has placed him on high ground, and made him a conspicuous character in the U. States and even in Europe. To these, as a matter of no small consideration, may be added, that as a lucrative practice in the line of his profession is his most certain dependance, the inducement to relinquish it must in some degree be commensurate. By some he is considered an ambitious man. That he is ambitious, I shall readily grant, but, it is of that laudable kind which prompts a man to excel in whatever he takes in hand.

"He is enterprizing, quick in his perceptions; and in his judgment intuitively great: Qualities essential to a great military character, and therefore I repeat, that his loss will be irreparable."

For the Alexandria Advertiser.

"Where a man's name is up, he may lie in bed."

SIR,

I OBSERVED, with no small degree of surprise, a paragraph in the Washington Federalist, asserting, that no less than eleven of the principal Democratic officers of our government were absent from their different posts—from the President down to the accountant for the War and Navy Departments—some of them for months—and all, save one, for weeks.

It is true, as that paper further observes, that so clamorous were the Democrats against Adams when he filled the presidential chair, that they followed him with hue and cry whenever he left the seat of government.

When we turn to the language of the party of these very absent men, while they were struggling to get their places—the speeches, the pamphlets, and paragraphs they manufactured, in order to convince their fellow citizens that matters would be better ordered by them. I say, when we look back to those days, we are bewildered in reflection on the instability of man.

A thousand instances could be adduced of the most libellous charges upon the administration under John Adams—nay often did the party in opposition impute his visit to his family, to be a neglect of duty. Then would follow comments on the shameful practise of receiving public money and doing nothing for it.

One of these most virtuous writers in the year 1794, after inveighing against government in the most malignant strain; in pointing out what he calls a remedy for state corruption, says,

"We shall not hesitate to pronounce that our affairs are badly conducted, and whether from the errors of ignorance or the designs of wickedness a remedy should be applied—And thank God! That remedy, though not immediately, will, ere long, be in the hands of the people."

A writer on the other side of the question, thereon observed:

"This prophesy appeared in print, about the 20th July last, (1794) just at the time when the rebellion in the West was breaking out; its date explains its meaning."

"Then (continues the democrats) it is to be hoped that the true republicans of America will unite, and hurl with just resentment from their exalted stations, men who have abused the confidence of a generous people. To effect this, persevere ye writers in defence of liberty; and, you popular societies, relax not in your laudable pursuits, your countrymen shall bless you, and your honest zeal shall be crowned with patriotic rewards—let no considerations of past services, or temporary dignity deter you from exhibiting to public view, the public servant, who has abused his trust, or acts not for the interest of those who constituted him."

Pray Mr. Printer, who, think you, was meant by this "public servant?" Alas I fear to ask—the subject has become hateful to me—hoping, therefore, either a speedy return to their duty, of our public servants of the present day, or the adoption of a little "HONEST ZEAL" towards them.

I remain, Sir,
Your constant reader,
A. Z.

Extract of a letter from Liverpool, dated July 1.

"In consequence of the situations the French have occupied at the mouth of the Elbe and Weser, to prevent our ships navigating the same, and our government has declared both rivers to be in a state of blockade against all shipping whatever, until Prussia shall guarantee the accustomed freedom of trading to Hamburg, and the other towns, on their banks.—What effect this determined measure may produce, it is impossible to foresee, but mean while all business is put a stop to; and as nothing has been doing for some time past, in sugar, coffee, or other West India articles, prices remain nominally as last quoted; the same is partly the case with tobacco and cotton, tho' of the latter a few good bowed uplands even sold yesterday at 13 to 13¼d per lb. Or Nicaragura wood, about 70 tons arrived a few days ago, and prices have fallen in consequence of this dull time to 40 to 35l per ton. Logwood has also given away, and coming from your side in British ships, so as to be admitted for home use, is with Jamaica 23 to 24l per ton, and Campeachy 27 to 28l. Fustic 17 to 21l. Mahogany will also probably yield little in price, on arrival of the expected supplies.

Indigo, cochineal and ashes, are pretty steady at the prices stated in our last. Tar dull at 23 to 24s and turpentine about the same rate. Staves continue in demand—white oak bbl. from 16l 10s to 18l 18s. hhd. 13 to 28l. and pipe up to 35l per m. Corn continues to decline, owing to the very favorable season we have had for the growing crops. N. York wheat cannot be rated above 8 to 8 6, and superfine flour moves very slowly at 33 to 34s per bbl. The new duties laid on our imports will little effect American articles, except cotton, which will in future pay 2d per lb. The act is not yet published.

We marvel whether our worthy President will at the ensuing election, reluctantly suffer his friends, again "to buckle fortune on his back;" or indulge himself, as he once frightened the Union by threatening to do, in retirement, with that old flam from Addison's Cato, "the post of honor is a private station" The prime minister of England once told Gondomar, the Spanish ambassador, that he wished to be rid of the burden of office, and that he had formerly, and still continued to have a desire to live private and enjoy the comforts of retirement. But Gondomar, who was not to be taken in, made answer—"My Lord, I will tell you a story on this subject—There was once an old Rat that would needs leave the world: He accordingly acquainted the young rats, that he would retire into his hole, there spends his days in all the sweets of solitude, retirement, and pious philosophic contemplation, and have nothing to do with wordly grandeur or gaiety. He therefore commanded them under penalty of his high displeasure not to dare to come near him. They forbore two or three days—at last, one more hardy and curious than the rest, incited some of his brothers to go with him, and see their father in his solitude, for that perhaps he might be dead. They went, and found the cunning old gentleman sitting enjoying philosophy and abstinence very gingerly in his hole, in the heart of a large, rich Parmesan Cheese." A Mammoth cheese would be a charming retreat, a nice "Post of Honour."

Under a Decree of the said Court, We the Commissioners will expose to PUBLIC SALE, for ready money, on the premises, at 12 o'clock, on Friday the 30th day of September next, called Mount Salus, alias Millthrop, lying in Fairfax county, on Difficult and Wolf Trapruns, containing by Deed 550 acres & by survey 673 acres. The Mansion House is on a high healthy and agreeable situation, convenient to which are springs of good water—The house is 40 by 18 feet, two rooms on a floor, with a nine feet passage and stair case, two brick chimnies, with a fire place to each room, a piazza the whole length of the front, a cellar 40 by 18 walled with stone and divided into two apartments. There are several small buildings near the Mansion House and garden. There are also a valuable Merchant and Grist Mill, Saw Mill, Distillery, Miller's House and Overseer's House.—The Mill House is 40 by 30, two stories high, half of the lower story of stone, the other part framed work, and covered with shingles. There are one pair of Burr, and one pair of Cologne stones, three bolting cloths almost new, and one screen, all now in use in manufacturing wheat and grinding grist. The still house 40 by 30, one story high, walls of stone and shingled roof, the floors planked, the upper laid for malting grain, and troughs fixed round the whole house constructed to carry water to every vessel which may need it. Three stills and one boiler can be worked to advantage in said house. The waters on Wolf Trap, on which the mill and saw mill stand, are constant streams. The situation for country custom, or purchasing wheat is exceeded by none in the county or neighborhood, not being more than 17 miles from Alexandria, and 13 from George Town, where there are excellent markets for country produce of every description; and about 14 miles from the city of Washington. The land is fertile and productive, and the soil well adapted to receive improvement, from the use of plaister of Paris. There are upwards of 3000 pannels of fence on the land, and about 160 or 170 acres of well timbered land belonging to the tract. There have been nearly 20 acres of timothy made, lying on Wolf Trap and Difficult runs; 50 acres more may be made at a small expence. This farm enjoys many natural advantage which are unnecessary for us to mention, it being taken for granted that any person wishing to buy such property will avail themselves of the opportunity of viewing the premises, previous to the day of sale.

THAT VALUABLE & EXTENSIVE

The terms of which are, one third of the money to be paid on the day of sale, (at which time deeds will be made the purchaser) one third in six months, and the other third in twelve months, with the interest accruing on the two last payments from the day of sale. A deed of trust will be expected to secure the last payments.

Some informality in the decree prevented the sale agreeably to the former notice. This defect being obviated by the parties, the property will most certainly be sold as now notified.

Captain James Wiley, residing near the land, will shew the premises, and also a plat of the survey, which is left with him for the information of those concerned.

The title papers will be exhibited on the day of sale.
